LINSLY INSTITUTE.

The next term of the Linsly Institute will begin Monday, September 3d, at 9 o'clock A. M. During the coming year a full corps of experienced and competent instructors will be in attendance, and every facility for securing a thorough education will be offered. It is especially destrable that students should be present at the opening of the term, as the new classes will then be formed, and the necessary changes in the various rooms will be made.

A CHURCH SOCIETY SPLIT

and a Policeman's aid Invoked to serve Order.

A difficulty occurred vesterday afternoo at St. Alphonsus hall which caused some comment, and various distorted versions of the affair became current. The only fact up on which they seemed to agree was that a policeman had been called in to enforce Father Kreusch's authority as priest in charge of the church and assist in preserving order at a seting of a church society. The facts in interfere, but the officer had found his pres-ence unnecessary, and retired.

The ladies of the congregation have had a society for years which had for its object raising funds to pay for masses for the souls of members who died. An assessment of fe-cents per member was made at each death of a member, the sum thus raised being used to defray the expenses of the usual masses for the dead. It was customary to have ten high the dead. It was customary to have ten high masses and several low ones and for each member who died. The society numbered over 400 women and a very few men. One of the latter, Mr. Xavier Regele, of the Sixth ward, was the President. In the past, the society has been accustomed to pay the officiating priest $3 for each high mass and $1 for each low mass. Recenting, however, Rev. Father Kreuich announced that hereafter the fee for a high mass would to be in accordance with instructions from the Bishon.

The society objected to the increase. resterday held a meeting in the school roc ploining the church, at which a motion we made that the society decline to pay more masses in the future than it was accusto d to pay. The President put the motion for masses in the future than it was accustomed to pay. The President put the motion, and all present and voting, but two, voted in the affirmative. The President therefore declared the motion carried.

Some person present informed Father Kreusch of this action and he sent for Mritagele to come and set him. The President at first declined, but finally did go, and a not very friendly meeting took place, and after some pretty warm discussion Mr. Regele returned to the school room, and charler Kreush sent for a policeman, saying that Mr. Regele was using violent language and he wanted him arrested.

When the policeman reached the school house he found that the society had adjourned to the large hall up-tialrs, where a meet-was a large hall up-tialrs, where a meet-was a supplementation.

house he found that the society has acquired to the large hall up-tairs, where a meing of the Kuight of St. George was alread in progress. Rev. Fathers Kreusch at Schillt were both present, and the latter dmanded of Mr. Regels that he surrender thooks of the society, which he did. To officer then quietly told Mr. Regels that he with the surrender the control of the society of th ad better withdraw to prevent further arbance, and he complied, most of the s turbanes, and he compiled, most of the social following.

It is announced that on next Sunda Father Kreusch will re-organize the society With this movement the late President asy a majority amounting to practically all in memoers will have nothing to do, and he regards the society's existence as a thing of the past, saying he will have nothing further t do with it.

The smouldering fire at once burst out into a bright fiame, ignited the stream of oil, and was communicated to that in the can. An explosion followed, and the burning fluid wes thrown all over the poor girl, burning all the exposed portions of her person painfully, and setting fire to her clothing. She dropped the can and ran soreaming from the house into an alley which adjoins. The fresh breess fanned the filmes into new fury, and but for the presence of a lady and two gentlement he accident would have had an immidiately fatal effect. A meeting of the Belmont County Central Committeemen of the Republican party was held at St. Clairaville on Saturday. The townships were all represented, and the same spirit of amity and harmony which characterized, the recent county convention was manifest there also, very much to the chagrin of the Democracy, who had predicted and hoped for a disagreement. After a report from the old committee, the newly elected committeemen proceeded to organize by electing O. W. Carroli, Chairmao, W. A.

A Pleasant Celebration

Saturday was the tenth anniversary of the opening of a restaurant in this city by Martin Thoraton, and Saturday night Martin gave a little banquet to his friends, the members of the local press. The table was elegantly apread, and the till of fare was superb, everything being done in the style of which the proprietor of the Capital is a master. At the close of the feast, Mr. O. S. Long, clerk of the Supreme Court of Appeals, and an exmember of the city press, by request of the other guests made a very happy speech of congratulation, and at a late hour all departed wishing Martin continued property and many mere decades of usefulses as a caterer to discriminating Wheelingites.

Hon, John B. Finch, the brilliant Nebraska lawyer and temperance orator, has been engaged by the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Stenbenville to speak in that city next Wedeneday evening. All the larger churches were undergoing repairs and so was Garretit's Hall. It was therefore decided to rent the new City Hall, or Opera House, as Stenbenville delights to call it. City Solicitor Reynolds is manager. Thirty dollars, the rent charged, was raised, and it was supposed that everything was lovely, when Reynolds informed the committee that he had decided that it would be inexpedient and not advisable to let the Opera House for the purpose, To a Gasette reporter he said the crowd would spit on the carpets, climb over and break the chairs and disarred. he said the crowd would spit on the carpets, climb over and break the chairs and disarrange things of that he could not have the house ready by 10 A. They were then led to their skiffs, held in a row, hows pointing to Benvood, and at the word "go" they went. The average success was much greater than last year, and consequently there was not so much anusement for the crowd. Several rowed up the river and some down. One rowed out a few yards, gradually turned and dashed back to shore only a few yards from his starting point. John Hughes rowed directly across, never varjug his course, and won the race aimest as straight a line, but did not ge fast enough.

The Antomatic City will continue for a fer days longer to dispense enjoyment to the pleasure-seekers of Wheeling. It is operennial source of anusement and instruction—the great mechanical educator of the day. It is not strange that the room is crawled with visitors, all of whom go away in a better and happier frame of mind. It is unquestionably the finest and most artistic work in scientific mechanism the world-harver produced.
